

IHC Hospitals, Inc. System Hospitals

uous monitor mechanisms that would detect early symptoms of decreasing quality of care.

Conducted quarterly educational meetings for Intermountain Health Care, Inc. quality assurance managers and participated in more than 100 hours of teaching designed to increase awareness of quality care delivered by other hospital professionals.

Risk Management

Saved IHC and its subsidiaries approximately $2 million in insurance premiums through self-insurance programs.

Conducted strong risk prevention and control activities.

Central Laundry

Increased productivity by over 3 percent.

Repairing torn laundry items saves hospitals money. Mary Wolfe, left, laundry employee, Bill Prows, center, assistant vice president for shared services, and Dana Barnett, right, assistant director of shared services, examine linen in the central laundry's linen manufacturing and repair area.

Doug Gregory, left, ASI data processing marketing representative, points out potential new affiliates to John Morris and Mary Stoneman.

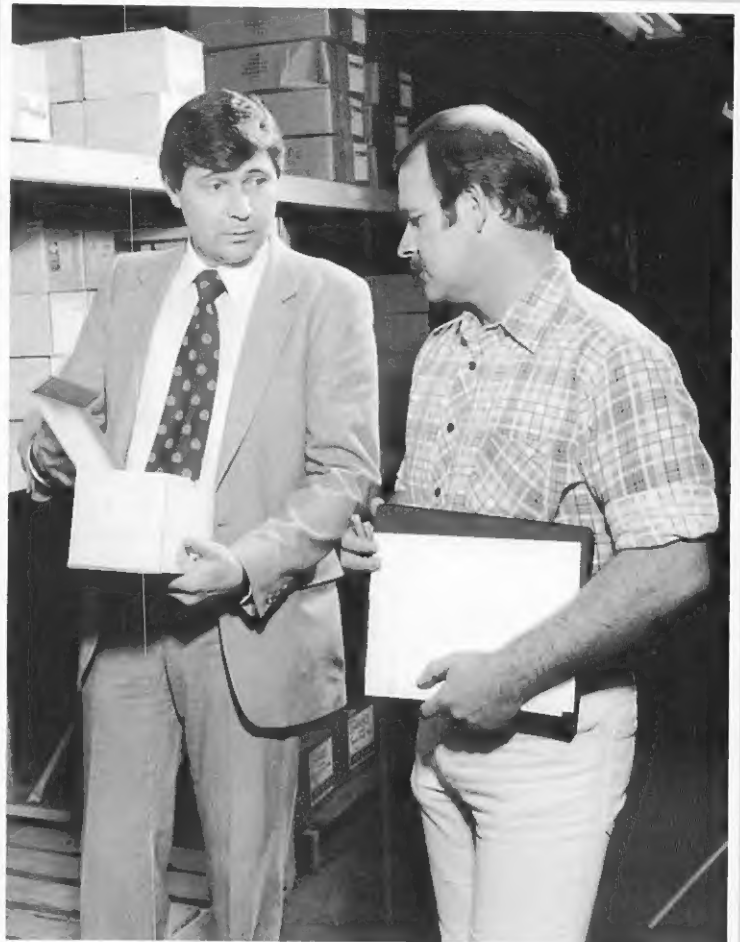

America, based in Fargo, N.D., and Adventist Health System-West, based in Glendale, Calif., two multihospital corporations, have purchased the system.

- ASI's third division is the result of a joint venture with Interact Performance Systems, an Orem, Utah-based corporation which designs, develops, markets and implements training programs for managers, supervisors and employees.

Called Interact, this division oversees the marketing and implementation of the programs developed by ASI and Interact Performance Systems. The Interact division also assesses needs in affiliate institutions and helps design new programs.

Two programs being marketed by the division are First A.I.D. for Client Relations and Interpersonal Problem Solving. Interpersonal Problem Solving was recently purchased by the Lutheran Hospitals and Homes Society of America.
